Dear All,

Two terms in the world of EuRA are still rather new and unfamiliar for some of you:

EuRA InGA:

"Information Gathering and Analysis" - Under this title we will conduct all research and survey activities. In most cases we will use surveymonkey.com an Internet tool allowing total anonymity. The analysis will be done internally.

EuRA InGAB:

"Information Gathering and Analysis Bulletin" - The results and the findings of the analysis will be published in a separate Bulletin. It will be independent from the EuRApean and the regular EuRA Bulletin; however, you might find a synopsis of the findings in the EuRApean.

The first InGAB will be sent out at the end of May and will release the results from InGA 1 & 2. However, here is a summary of the results collated so far;

InGA One January 2009 - Topics for Vienna Conference Sessions

Some Key Findings

45 participants from 17 countries, very satisfactory bearing in mind the complexity and the relatively high number of questions

65% of the participants are members of EuRA for more than 7 years. So the answers are based on experience

The most common obstacle for 77.3% is the pressure on fees

The most used words in the answers had been "quality" and "communication"

InGA Two March 2009 - Snapshot Survey - State of the Industry

Some Key Findings

103 responses from just over 500 recipients. The return rate of 20% is really good and very encouraging for the future

Results: Minus 7.9% for question one and minus 13.6% for question two

If you want to read the full results look for the EuRA InGAB that will be published in the next two weeks.

We hope that you find these results interesting and useful and we look forward to your participation in future surveys.

Best regards
Helmut
